THE UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM
Knowledge for Action

Explore ideas, think strategically, make an impact.

20+ courses in business

17+ courses in liberal arts and sciences

Business makes things happen and affects every part of society. Whatever you want to do, a degree from Wharton will give you the knowledge and experience to do it.

With Wharton’s combination of business and liberal arts in the Ivy League, you will gain a strong foundation of skills and a framework for thinking creatively and strategically to solve problems. You’ll have the flexibility to follow your interests as you engage in hands-on experiences, gain invaluable practice working in teams, and learn how to use your knowledge and skills to make a difference.

Join our students as they put knowledge into action. As the leader in business education, we’ll be there to empower you every step of the way. Are you up for the challenge?
Explore Business and More
Wharton provides innovative interdisciplinary options and active experiential learning in business, combined with all the resources of Penn.

Start your own business, manage a clothing brand, or even build a new car—with a degree from Wharton you can go wherever your path leads you and be more effective in the career you choose.

The Wharton BS in Economics—It’s a Different Way of Learning
Wharton offers a bachelor of science in economics, but studying business at Wharton and studying economics in a liberal arts program are very different.

If you major in economics at a liberal arts school, you’ll take courses focused on theories, history, and modeling. You’ll start with a theory or abstract idea and then look for problems to understand how the theory applies.

At Wharton you’ll study a range of business subjects—from accounting to entrepreneurship to policy. Classes focus on problem solving with real-world examples; you’ll look for solutions and then examine theories to see how they might apply.

Flexibility and Opportunity
Every semester you can take classes at Wharton and at least one other school at Penn, including eight of our graduate schools. In fact, 40% of your required courses will be taken outside of Wharton. Why? Because studying business within social, political, and historical contexts makes you a better agent of change. It also means that you will have even more opportunities and paths to choose from when you graduate.

USE THE ENTIRE UNIVERSITY

4 undergraduate schools and 8 graduate schools to explore your interests

4,200+ courses

What I have gotten out of my two years of Wharton thus far is the opportunity to try anything and everything, to meet new and diverse people who have varied interests, and to sample vastly different fields of study.

Alaric Qin | Los Angeles, CA
Gain a Grounding in Business (60% of required courses)
You’ll get a strong foundation in business by taking 20 courses at Wharton in diverse subjects like real estate, marketing, and finance.

Pursue Diverse Interests (40% of required courses)
You’ll take at least 17 courses in the liberal arts and sciences, including a Critical Writing Seminar and courses in the humanities, sciences, and social sciences.

Experience Innovative Learning
As the first collegiate business school, Wharton invented undergraduate business education, and we’re still innovating. Wharton students learn the latest business ideas as they’re being created.

Learn from the Best
Our 225+ professors—the largest, most published, faculty at any business school—work directly with leading global businesses, nonprofit organizations, and government agencies.

Our classes are challenging and intellectually rigorous, but at the same time, they’re collaborative and full of interaction. Professors customize their teaching methods to the needs of each class, so you’ll find everything from the Socratic method and traditional lectures to case studies and computer simulations.

All Wharton undergraduate lectures are taught by professors, not graduate teaching assistants. Our professors are available to our students. They hold office hours, have lunch with students, serve as concentration advisors, judge case competitions, and mentor students for research projects.

Research Opportunities
Look deeper into the questions that interest you by engaging in research. You can customize what you’re learning and pursue a topic in depth with help from a faculty scholar, through a School-sponsored program, summer experience, or independent study.

Entrepreneurship
Interested in starting your own company? There isn’t a better place to be if you have a business idea of your own. Wharton has one of the largest programs with faculty, resources, and know-how to help you make your idea a reality.

Technology to Enhance Learning
Wharton provides a host of innovative resources that redefine how business is studied and how business insights are shared. You can manage a billion-dollar stock portfolio, control a country’s fishing fleet, or prepare a marketing plan for a totally new product—all through simulations.

“Getting to know my Business Economics and Public Policy professor made it easier to participate in class and ask questions.”
Felipe Santos | São Paulo, Brazil

“My favorite class so far has been my Enabling Technologies course. I’ve always known that Internet ad personalization exists, but this class has taught me how the technology behind it actually works, and how successful companies today are using it.”
Jane Zhu | Rochester, NY
Lead and Work in a Team

We’re serious about working together to achieve common goals. In fact, our team-based curriculum makes it difficult to succeed if you’re only in it for yourself. Our virtual classrooms and our home in Huntsman Hall were intentionally designed to facilitate teamwork.

Management 100

In Management 100, the hallmark of your freshman year, you’ll work in a team of 10 students to plan and execute a community service project for a Philadelphia nonprofit. You’ll make some of your closest friends while learning key leadership concepts, experiencing what it means to work in a team, and discovering who you are as a leader.

Beyond the Classroom

Learning about leadership and teamwork isn’t something that’s restricted to the classroom. You might be surprised to find that your greatest lessons are learned while working on a new business with your classmates, or consulting for a local nonprofit while on a Wharton Leadership Venture. Getting involved is a great way to flex your leadership muscles. And with over 300 clubs at Penn and over 40 at Wharton, it’s easy to jump right in.

Spotlight: Wharton Leadership Ventures

Take part in learning experiences structured to build your individual leadership capabilities. From working with an Iron Chef to getting an inside look at the Trauma Center at Penn, you will venture into settings where you will learn from the experiences of others whose leadership was on the line.

“Wharton creates an environment where students are not afraid to take risks in the pursuit of their entrepreneurial goals. I have been able to find mentors, conduct research, secure funding for my own business, and work with CEOs and other senior executives to learn how successful businesses are built from the ground up.”

Katlyn Grasso | Buffalo, NY

“Management 100 wasn’t about learning textbook material. It was about learning about yourself and how to interact with a close team of ten to deliver a meaningful project that truly impacted people’s lives.”

Sam Mattis | East Brunswick, NJ
Make a Better World
Your classmates will come from around the world, and you’ll do things like study abroad, minor in a language, or learn from foreign business executives through the Wharton International Program or a Global Modular Course. You’ll leave with a global outlook and become part of a network of 94,000 Wharton alumni around the world.

Choose Your International Experience
We live in a global society, and that’s reflected in every part of Wharton and Penn. Nearly all Wharton courses incorporate international issues and trends. Students have a language requirement and are encouraged to study abroad or participate in international trips. Wharton has over 20 semester-length programs with the world’s top business schools, specifically designed to fit our curriculum, and Penn offers more than 100 in the liberal arts.

Do Something Meaningful
Wharton supports initiatives that foster social responsibility in and out of the classroom. Management 100 projects are designed to have a positive social impact, like revamping marketing programs to help find foster homes for teens in Philadelphia. And, during a recent Wharton International Program course in Panama, students earned course credit while participating in service-learning projects and visiting socially responsible companies.

Spotlight: College Town within a City
One of the best things about being a student at Penn is having the city of Philadelphia at your doorstep.

The University of Pennsylvania, America’s first university, boasts a unified campus that houses all of Penn’s vibrant undergraduate, graduate, and professional schools—a unique interdisciplinary environment in historic Philadelphia.

Philly is big enough to have lots to do, yet small enough to get to know. Penn students live right in the middle of University City, a neighborhood with its own stores, restaurants, and movie theaters. And you are just a hop away from everything Philadelphia has to offer, whether you want to go for a run in Fairmount Park, or try out the restaurants and shops of Rittenhouse Square.

ENGAGE WITH THE WORLD

21% of Wharton undergrads come from outside the U.S.

27% study abroad

100+ international exchange options at Wharton and Penn

I never imagined I would meet and work with so many students and faculty from all over the world, or that I would have the opportunity to travel to South America with Wharton. The global perspective has broadened my understanding of business within an international context.*

Ann Hewitt | Houston, TX

Wharton provides opportunities to make a change on a grander, more international scale. I’ve already worked with a start-up in Beijing, China, during my study abroad semester, helping match underprivileged migrant workers with employers in the big cities of China.*

Join a Dynamic Community

You will make friends and build lifelong connections in a dynamic and diverse community that starts at Penn and extends around the world. You’ll find hundreds of ways to get involved, impact society, pursue personal passions, and try out new things in a welcoming environment.

Cohorts and Clubs
Your community at Wharton starts with your cohort—a group of 60 students with whom you’ll share academic and extracurricular experiences during your four years at Penn. As an integrated member of the Penn community, you will also make deep connections with students from every school through your College House, your athletic teams, Greek life, and the clubs and organizations you join.

Advising and Support
From house deans to Wharton’s dedicated team of professional academic advisors, our faculty and staff will be there to support you every step of the way. Our large support network helps you get the most out of your college experience and find the path that’s right for you. You’ll never be on your own at Wharton.

Alumni—Get Connected for Life
Alumni are constantly coming to campus to talk to current students about their experiences and to give advice through our alumni/student network. No matter what you do in the future, you’ll have lifelong connections and friendships with the business leaders of today and tomorrow. On top of that, you’re part of Penn’s alumni network, with 300,000 graduates around the world.

Support for Diversity
At Penn, you’ll find a diverse community supportive of a unique mix of cultures and beliefs, as well as the most international students of any Ivy League university. You’ll discover clubs, centers, and events that reflect the incredible diversity of our community—from the Penn Arab Student Society to the LGBT Center to discussion panels held by Check One, a group dedicated to supporting multiracial students.
Coming into the Life Sciences & Management program, I was most excited about my biology courses. Soon I realized how practical and interesting business could be, especially in how it informs my passion to bring pharmaceutical research into the hands of consumers.

Frank Wolf  |  Pittsburgh, PA

Since coming to Wharton, I've realized that it's okay not to know exactly what I want to do. I could use my environmental passions to work in sustainability, my experiences working at a movie theater to work in media, or develop my growing interest in real estate. Wharton encourages you to pursue what you love and gives you the open curriculum to do that.

Penn Is Affordable
Penn’s commitment to financial aid makes the possibility of a Wharton education a reality for students from all walks of life. We encourage you to apply.

Penn admits students on the basis of academic and personal accomplishments without regard to their ability to pay. Applying for financial aid does not affect your admissions decision. Penn has eliminated loans from need-based aid packages, regardless of family income level. Students have the option to use loans to supplement their aid packages.
